

Instructor: Date:

Learner: Regional Branch:

Program: Center:

CONTENT

• Let's Start! • Let's Explore! • Let's Practice! • Extension Activity • Target Words • Learning Points

Let's Start!

Pronunciation Spot: It's a mock interview!

Learning Outcome

Exchange information about people's interests and backgrounds using a wider range of language.

Ask your partner:

- What are some common questions people are asked in job interviews?
- Would you prefer to be the interviewer or the interviewee? Why?

Can Do Statements

- I can talk about jobs, work, manners and customs.
- I can use and pronounce words like sign.
- I can use proper intonation and stress in long questions and sentences.

Let's Explore!

Sally blogs about a mock interview to cover the basics.

* To "cover" means to deal with a subject by describing its most important aspects.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

The Mock Interview

Dear Readers,

Recently, I've been receiving many questions about the kinds of questions that are asked in job interviews. I decided to set up a mock interview to cover the basics for you. Here is the transcript of the interview.

Interviewer: Good afternoon, Ms. Davis. It's nice to meet you.

Sally: It's nice to meet you, too.

Interviewer: Before we begin, this is a copy of our non-disclosure agreement. Please read it over and sign and date the last page.

Sally: Certainly.

Interviewer: Great, thank you. So, I see you've done some travel in foreign countries. Are you comfortable traveling for work?

Sally: Absolutely. I love to travel and my home schedule is quite flexible - I don't have any obligations.

Interviewer: Why did you resign from your previous job?

Sally: Well, my manager's goals for the company did not align with mine in the best way. I thought it best to step down and allow room for someone who is a better fit.

Interviewer: Tell me about your role there.

Sally: I was in charge of the design and development of their new cologne marketing campaign. I was also assigned as the head QA.

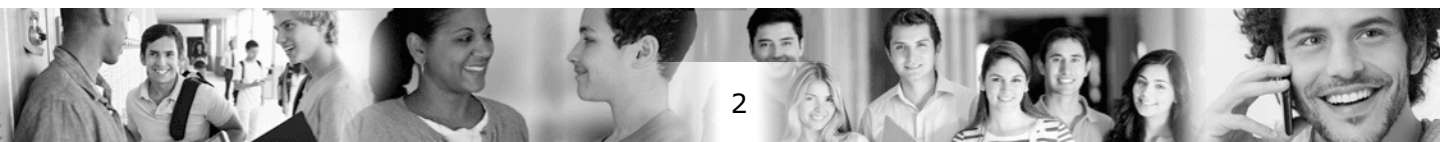

Interviewer: I see. Do you have any questions for me?

Sally: Yes. Does the company offer opportunities for professional development?

Interviewer: Absolutely. We have workshops and seminars three times a year.

Interviewer: It was a pleasure meeting you. I will be in touch by the end of the week.

Sally: Thank you very much for the opportunity. Good bye.

Let's Practice!

Words with silent g can be tricky!

Instructions: Proofread the sentences. Circle the incorrect words. Write the correct word above to complete the sentence. Use capital letters where necessary.

1. Please read it over and sign and date the last page.
2. So, I see you've done some travel in foreign countries.
3. Why did you resign from your previous job?
4. I was in charge of the design and development of their new cologne marketing campaign.
5. I was also assigned as the head QA.

Let's Practice!

Sally uses a lot of work vocabulary in her blog.

Instructions: Choose the words from the word bank to correctly complete the sentences.

1. To _____ means to write the date on an official document.
2. If you resign you voluntarily _____.
3. Professional development means the act of _____ your professional skills.
4. QA is short for _____.
5. A _____ is an organized course of action to achieve a particular goal.

Word Bank

- improving
- quality assurance
- leave your job
- campaign
- date

Extension Activity

Practice a mock interview.

Instructions: Complete the following steps. Fill in the Self-Assessment.

- Imagine that you are hiring a new employee at your company.
- Write some questions that you would like to ask a potential employee in an interview. Be sure to use some words with a silent g!
- With a partner, practice the interview. Ask your partner the questions you wrote.
- Switch roles. Your partner will ask you interview questions and you can answer them.
- Practice interviewing each other until you feel confident!

Self-Assessment

Yes No

I use and pronounce words like sign.

☐ ☐

I talk about jobs, work, manners and customs.

☐ ☐

I use proper intonation and stress in long questions and sentences.

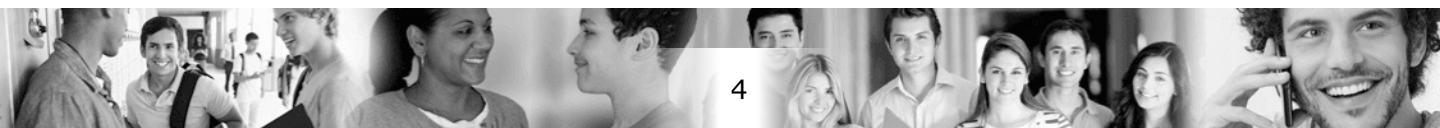

☐ ☐

I interview a partner and answer interview questions.

☐ ☐

Target Words

- non-disclosure agreement (noun): an agreement between you and a company that states you will not tell other people company secrets
e.g. Before we begin, this is a copy of our non-disclosure agreement.
- to date (verb): to write the date on an official document e.g. Please read it over and sign and date the last page.
- to resign (verb): to voluntarily leave a job
e.g. Why did you resign from your previous job?
- to assign (verb): to give a task to someone e.g. I was also assigned as the head the department.
- professional development (noun): the act of improving your professional skills
e.g. Does the company offer opportunities for professional development?
- QA (noun): short for "quality assurance"
e.g. I was also assigned as the head QA.
- mock (adjective): pretend e.g. I decided to set up a mock interview.
- cologne (noun): men's perfume
e.g. I was in charge of the design and development of their new cologne.
- campaign (noun): an organized course of action to achieve a particular goal e.g. I was in charge of the design and development of their marketing campaign.
- the basics (noun): the essential facts or principles of a skill e.g. I decided to set up a mock interview to cover the basics for you.

Learning Points

Silent Letter G

You don't say every letter in a word in English pronunciation. Some letters are silent, which means that you don't hear them as you would pronounce them normally.

Here are examples of the silent letter g in words. Practice saying the example sentences.

Words	Example
sign Pronounced: "sain"	Please read it over and sign and date the last page.
foreign Pronounced: "forin"	I see you've done some travel in foreign countries.
resign Pronounced: "rizain"	Why did you resign from your previous job?
align Pronounced: "alain"	My and my manager's goals for the company did not align in the best way.
design Pronounced: "dizain"	I was in charge of design and development.
assign Pronounced: "asain"	I was also assigned as the head QA.

Other words that have the silent g are:

Learning Points

cologne "ka lone"
campaign "cam pain"
champagne "sham pain"
reign "rain"
diaphragm "dia fram"

Breaking Sentences into Parts

When you read or speak in English, you often "chunk" or break the sentence into parts based on the meaning contained in each part. Each chunk is a phrase that has meaning (containing content words). You do not chunk between function words (like articles, pronouns, prepositions etc).

Breaking sentences or questions into parts makes it easier for you to say them and easier for the listener to hear the ideas contained in the sentence.

For example, look at the sentence:

I was in charge of the design and development of their new cologne marketing campaign.

This sentence could be chunked or broken into the following parts:

I was in charge of the design and development of their new cologne marketing campaign.

It CANNOT be chunked this way, since it needs to be separated into meaningful pieces of language:

I was in charge of the design and development of their new cologne marketing campaign.

Examples:

- *I thought it best*to step down*and allow room*for someone who is a better fit.*
- *Well,*my manager's goals for the company*did not align with mine* in the best way.*
- *Does the company offer*opportunities for professional development?*

