

Instructor: Date:

Learner: Regional Branch:

Program: Center:

CONTENT

- Let's Start! • Let's Explore! • Let's Practice! • Extension Activity • Target Words • Learning Points

Let's Start!

What am I supposed to do to find a good job?

Learning Outcome

Accurately use information about people's backgrounds in a wider variety of communicative situations.

Ask your partner:

- What are three tips you would give your friends if they were looking for a new job?
- Do you have a résumé? What is on it?

Can Do Statements

- I can talk about jobs, work, manners and customs.
- I can talk about what I should, ought to, had better, or am supposed to do.
- I can talk about future action.

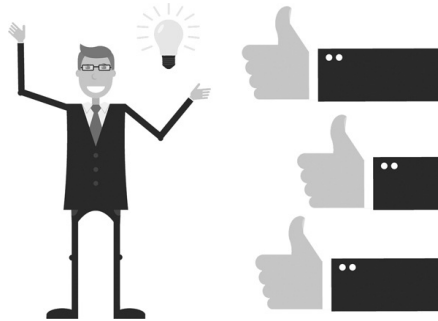

Let's Explore!

Sally enlists the help of a guest blogger to share more information with her readers about job hunting.

* To "enlist" means to engage a person's help or support.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

Dear Readers,

My last article about job hunting tips was received very well! I decided to invite a guest blogger, Cooper Anderson, who has a wealth of experience I hope you can draw from.

As the CEO of Cambridge Life Magazine, I've worked my way up the chain, so to speak. I've applied for, interviewed for and landed (most of the time) a variety of different jobs. I hope the advice I have will propel you towards that dream job.

1. Quality trumps quantity

When you are applying for work, you should focus your time and effort only on jobs that match your résumé perfectly. Applying for 200 jobs that "sort of" suit your skills is a waste of time. You ought to be discriminating about where you apply and focus your energy on writing personalized cover letters.

2. Impress with a portfolio

The average person will bring a copy of their résumé to an interview, which is what you're supposed to do. Why not step it up a notch and bring a portfolio folder? This will include your résumé, cover letter, reference letters and examples of previous work.

3. Practice makes perfect

You had better not "wing it" during an interview. It is best to be prepared for any type of question they may throw at you. Taking the time to research the company and to practice your personal statement shall guarantee a smoother, more relaxed interview.

Let's Practice!

Sally blogs about job hunting.

Instructions: Draw a line to match the sentences from Column A to Column B.

COLUMN A

1. Our guest blogger, Cooper Anderson, has a wealth of experience
2. As the CEO of Cambridge Life Magazine,
3. Quality trumps
4. Why not step it up a notch
5. You had better not "wing it"

COLUMN B

- a. quantity.
- b. I hope you can draw from.
- c. I've worked my way up the chain.
- d. during an interview.
- e. and bring a portfolio as well as a resume?

Let's Practice!

Sally recommends preparing for the interview.

Instructions: Choose the words from the Word Bank to correctly complete the sentences.

1. I hope the advice I have _____ you towards that dream job.
2. The average person _____ of their résumé to an interview.
3. Taking the time to research the company and to practice your personal statement _____ a smoother, more relaxed interview.
4. A _____ your résumé, cover letter, reference letters and examples of previous work.
5. Being prepared for the interview _____ confident and relaxed.

Word Bank

- will help you to feel
- will bring a copy
- will propel
- portfolio will include
- shall guarantee

Extension Activity

Write an interview dialogue.

Instructions: Complete the following steps. Fill in the Self-Assessment.

- Imagine that you are going to interview an expert at job hunting for the radio.
- With a partner, write the dialogue for the interview.
- Practice the interview with your partner.
- Perform the interview in front of your class.

Self-Assessment

Yes

No

I talk about jobs, work, manners and customs.

☐ ☐

I talk about what I should, ought to, had better or am supposed to do.

☐ ☐

I talk about future action.

☐ ☐

I write an interview dialogue.

☐ ☐

Target Words

- a wealth of experience (expression): a lot of experience
e.g. Cooper Anderson has a wealth of experience I hope you can draw from.
- to work your way up the chain (expression): to start from a low position and work hard to get to a high position
e.g. As the CEO of Cambridge Life magazine, I've worked my way up the chain.
- to propel (verb): to push forward
e.g. I hope the advice I have will propel you towards that dream job.
- to trump (verb): to be better than something e.g. Quality trumps quantity.
- to personalize (verb): change something or add to it so that it is obvious that it comes from you e.g. You ought to be discriminating about where you apply and focus your energy on writing personalized cover letters.
- to step it up a notch (expression): do a bit more; work a little harder e.g. Why not step it up a notch and bring a portfolio folder?
- portfolio (noun): a collection of work like photographs or writing e.g. You should bring a portfolio of your photos to the interview.
- to wing it (verb): to try to do something without preparing first e.g. You had better not "wing it" during an interview.

Learning Points

Using Modals to Add Meaning

When you want to communicate a precise idea, you can use modal verbs to help you. Modals are verbs or verb phrases that add meaning to the main verb. Depending on which modal you choose, it can add the meaning of advice, strong advice or obligation.

Some modals that are often used in the context are: should/ought to, had better, and supposed to. Ought to is not used very often in conversation, but you may see it being used in writing.

Look at the following chart with examples of each modal.

Modal	Meaning	Example
Should	Advice	When you are applying for work, you should focus your time only on jobs that match your résumé perfectly.
Ought to	Advice	You ought to be discriminating about where you apply.
Had better	Strong Advice (Necessity)	You had better not "wing it" during an interview.
Supposed to	Obligation	The average person will bring a copy of their résumé to an interview, which is what you're supposed to do.

In conversation, it is common to reduce the sound of had in had better to 'd.

For example:

You 'd better not "wing it" in an interview.

Notice the question form of these modals:

What should I do before an interview?

Ought I to bring a copy of my résumé?

How had I better dress for an interview?

What am I supposed to ask in an interview?

Learning Points

Talking About the Future Using Will and Shall

You use will and shall to give information about the future or to make predictions (talk about what we think or guess) about the future.

This is the form you use:

subject + will/shall + verb

Example:

It will be cold tomorrow.

He shall call me next week.

Speakers of North American English rarely use shall in this way, as it sounds too formal in conversation. It is sometimes used in writing.

In conversation, it is common to use contractions for will (I'll, She'll, He'll, They'll, It'll).

Practice saying these sentences out loud:

I'll step it up a notch.

He'll apply for all the jobs he sees.

They'll be sure to include a cover letter with their resume.

We'll practice the interview a few times.

Examples:

- I hope the advice I have will propel you towards that dream job.
- This will include your résumé, cover letter, reference letters and examples of previous work.
- Taking the time to research the company and to practice your personal statement shall guarantee a smoother, more relaxed interview.
- The average person will bring a copy of their résumé to an interview.

